"Memory of Raychel"
by Lance Wagner

This photograph was taken late in 1997, when we were at that point in the relationship when everything you learn about your lover is new and wonderful. To me, she looks like an angel emerging from the darkness. That is why I chose to put it in the header of each page on the site. This photograph also helped me get through the difficult months immediately after her murder. Her peaceful expression overcomes the shadows here and helped me overcome my own shadows. It also reminds me of the first time we met (see "At First Sight").
